

Council of Ireland + Common law area for murder

pledge to North

From MICHAEL MILLS in Sunningdale

AFTER MORE than 50 hours of talks over the past four days here, the delegations from Dublin, London and Belfast eventually reached agreement on the formation of a Council of Ireland shortly before 8.0 o'clock last that a sound agreement has been drawn up which promised to open up a new era of relations between North and South and between Ireland and Britain.

The way is now clear for the setting up of the Northern Ireland Executive, and will be passed in the British House of Commons on Thursday to devolve powers on the new institution. The agreement covers a package deal of which the formation of the Council is the essential point, and policing, a common law enforcement area, human rights, and the status of Northern Ireland are dependent factors.

FULL TEXT OF COMMUNIQUE

Vol. XLIII. No. 290

ments and the parties involved sent. in the Northern Ireland Executive (Designate) met at Sun- Aspirations. ningdale on December 6, 7, 8

2. During the conference, each delegation stated their position on the status of Northern Ireland. 3. The Taoiseach said that the pasic principle of the conference was that the participants had tried to see what measure of agreement of benefit to all the concerned could be secured. In doing so, all had reached accommodation with one another on practical arrangements. But none had compromised, and none had asked others to compromise, in relation to basic aspirations. The people of the Republic,

A cold front is approaching from the north-west.

Forecast 6 2.m. to midnight: Cloudy and mild at first, with outbreaks of rain mainly in the west and north-west. Southwesterly winds will be fresh or strong. The rain will spread eastwards during the day, and a clearance to brighter, colder, showery weather will reach the west in the afternoon and all areas during the evening and night.

Further outlook: Frost tonight, wish. remaining rather cold, with moderate or fresh westerly winds. Lunchtime weather reports festerday included the following temperatures in Celsius and Fahrenheit: Amsterdam, sunny, 2, 36, Athens, sunny, 17, 63. Belfast, cloudy, 4, 39. Berlin, snow, minus 3, 27. Brussels, fair, 3, 37. Cork, fair, 6, 43. Dublin, fair, 8, 46. Las Palmas, cloudy, 19, 66. Lisbon, sunny, 12, 54. London, sunny, 4, 39. Madrid, sunny, 9, 48. Manchester, fair, 3, 37, Paris, sunny, 4, 39. Rome, sunny, 16, 61. Shannon, cloudy, 7, 45.

TODAY'S TIDES

a.m. p.m. 11.11 11.34 Galway 4.36 5.04 5.19 5.47 Limerick 6.06 6.34 10.37 10.58 Kilkee 11.02 11.23 11.05 11.29 Silgo 5.26 5.54 5.26 5.50 Traise 4.43 4.07 5.06 5.30 Waterford 5.33 5.57 7.53 8.22 Westport 4.56 5.24 4.10 4.34 Wexford 5.36 5.59 10.51 11.14 Wicklow 10.31 10.54

SUN RISES 8.29; SETS 4.07 LIGHTING-UP TIME 4.37 MOON DAY 16, FULL MOON RISES 4.35

URSCEALA

2,000 FEET FLAMES

IN FACTORY BLAST Huge blast in refrigerator factory rocked Buenos Aires last to a rubber factory and several homes, Flames 2,000 feet high. No immediate word of vasualties.

Police endoned of area which dracusted their leaser blasts, blacked post. Residents

THE FULL text of the Sunningdale Communique, covering 20 points, runs as follows:

The conference between only unity they wanted to see the British and Irish Govern-was a unity established by con-ing principles or aspirations.

the people of Northern Ireland to remain part of the United Dramatic Kingdom, as represented by the Unionist and Alliance delegations remained firm.

in the status of Northern international agreement at the Ireland until a majority of the United Nations. people of Northern Ireland solemnly declared that it was, ment at 7.45. It was confirmed and would remain, their policy officially shortly afterwards, and to support the wishes of the the hundreds of journalists waitmajority of the people in ing in the press centre were Northern Ireland. The present summoned to hear the statethat it is part of the United by the British Prime Minister, Kingdom, If in the future the Mr. Heath; the Taoiseach, Mr. majority of the people of Cosgrave, and the three Northern Northern Ireland should indi- leaders, Mr. Faulkner, Mr. Fitt cate a wish to become part of a and Mr. Napier.

a formal agreement incorporat- morning on the question would be signed at the formal refusal to take any further part ate safeguards for the British financial and other interests. It would com- Council of Ireland should have weary when he took the first prise a Council of Ministers a role in policing so that the conference. Sometimes, in fact, with executive and harmonising minority in Northern Ireland he was scarcely audible and he functions and a consultative could identify with, and support, role, and a consultative the R.U.C.

Safeguards

review functions.

petence were discussed.

came to the conference as rep- campaign of violence. resentatives of apparently incompatible sets of political Faulkner, were also happy that aspirations who had found it for the first time an Irish join together in government be- clared that there could be no cause each accepted that in change in the status of Northern doing so they were not sacrific- Ireland until a majority of the

The desire of the majority of change in that status.

ing the declarations of the policing, when Mr. Faulkner was British and Irish Governments said to have come close to a stage of the conference and in the negotiations in this area registered at the United Nations. unless clear assurances on the assembly with advisory and Agreement

The Council of Ministers would act by unanimity, and Irish Government will set up a would comprise a core of seven police authority and make members of the Irish Govern- appointments to it after conment and an equal number of sultation with the Council of members of the Northern Ministers of the Council Ireland Executive with provi- Ireland. sion for the participation of There will also be a Northern other non-voting members of Ireland police authority. the Irish Government and the which appointments will be Northern Ireland Executive or made after consultation with administration when matters the Northern Ireland Executive would control the functions of orities are set up, they will make the Council. The chairmanship their own arrangements to would rotate on an agreed basis achieve "improved policing between representatives of the throughout the island and Irish Government and of the developing community identifi-Northern Ireland Executive. cation with and support for the Arrangements would be made police services". for the location of the first The question of the Irish meeting, and the location of Government's acceptance of the Ministers.

At the Civil Service Training College here in Sunningdale, where the tripartite conference was held, there was obvious welcome among all the delegations for a successful ending to their deliberations.

The Irish Government and the SDLP were particularly happy , that for the first time the British Government had declared support for a united Ireland if the majority of the people of the area should indicate that wish. The SDLP were hopeful that stand in the way of a united 4. Mr. Brian Faulkner said that Ireland, might persuade the Prodelegates from Northern Ireland | visional I.R.A. to stop their

The Unionists, led by Mr. possible to reach agreement to Government had solemnly depeople of the area desired a

An agreement incorporating the declarations of the British and Irish Governments will be made 5. The Irish Government fully at the formal stage of the conaccepted and solemnly declared ference early in the New Year, that there could be no change and will be registered as an

The first dramatic news that desired a change in that status. | agreement had been reached The British Government came in an unofficial announcestatus of Northern Ireland is ments welcoming the agreement

United Ireland, the British There was a danger at one Government would support that point only of the conference of a breakdown. This occurred in 6. The conference agreed that the early hours of Saturday

R.U.C. were forthcoming. He was persuaded by Mr. 7. The conference agreed that | Heath and by Mr. Fitt to enter a Council of Ireland would be into the lengthy process of negoset up. It would be confined to tiations again, which resulted representatives of the two in the formula on policing parts of Ireland, with appropri- which is contained in the agreed the reporters.

The key issue was whether the

The agreement is that the within their departmental com- and with the Council of Ministers of the Council of Ireland. The Council of Ministers When the two police authnight, starting fire which spread subsequent meetings would be status of Northern Ireland was come ablicate that there were determined by the Council of resolved at an early stage of some oblique probings about his the conference. Mr. Cosgrave political future and the kind of The Consultative Assembly indicated that his government Assembly, he was firm and con-

To page 4

the Taoiseach

Faulkner happy over 'recognition' AT A PRESS conference following the talks, the Taoiseach, Mr. Cosgrave said that what had been sought "was a settlement which would foster the growth of trust and ease community fears throughout the island of Ireland and benefit all its people." And he added: "The agreement which we have reached to establish a Council of Ireland is of primary importance because Such a Council can establish trust between both parts of the island and with all sections of the Irish people."

Tired faces at Sunningdale

By AIDAN HENNIGAN

IT WAS a succession of very tired-looking politicians that took the stand in Trevelyan Hall, Sunningdale, last night, out the talks. to make their statements to some 200 journalists. If the journalists had complained rather bitterly that they were without food or drink for many hours last night, it appeared that the delegates fared less well.

"We simply did not have anything to eat or drink for quite a long time," Gerry Fitt told

Mr. Heath certainly looked conceded to the journalists present that he had spent 55 hours in the negotiations and had not in fact slept all of

Saturday night. With Mr. Heath on the platform was the new Secretary for Northern Ireland, Mr. Francis Pym, looking strangely mute, but the man on whose shoulders will fall the responsibility of implementing the decisions reached at Sunningdale.

It was the Taoiseach's turn next and although he also looked somewhat tired, bearing the strains of the marathon negotiating sessions, he was obviously conscious of the achievements which he and his team had secured around the conference table. Then it was the turn of Mr.

Faulkner, who of all the delegation leaders looked less strained and less tired. In fact, he was responsive and cheerful and fident and dealt in precise terms with the questioners, welcome

Lynch, said that he welcomed | Mr. Cosgrave pointed out that the fact that it was found there will be no British | -policing and human rights.

South or North, of persons highlight the need to give the the areas of common interest in Council adequate legal powers.

I would like to say that I functions," he said. recognise fully the arduous and their officials in the Sunningdale talks,

He said that his Government shared a commitment that there can be no change in the status of Northern Ireland until the majority of people in the North desire change in that status.

The needs of the present situation in Ireland were such that "we had to provide a coherent and balanced response to the realities of the situation. He said he believed such a response had been provided by the Irish Government through-

He said the issues dealt with were all inter-related and there! were four days of detailed discussions. Negotiations were prolonged, he explained, but the result was a "package which] can respond to the needs of the present situation in Ireland." Mr. Cosgrave claimed that it was possible to reach agreement because "we have not allowed ourselves to be intimidated by past prejudices." The proposals which had been agreed will work only if everybody committed themselves wholeheartedly, as a way of easing fears and resolving conflict in Ireland, he added. "We do so commit ourselves," he said. As elected representatives all of us came here united in the conviction that in our world real progress can come IN A statement last night, the only by the methods and through leader of the Opposition, Mr. the institutions of democracy."

possible to reach agreement representation on the Council, on the setting-up of a Council and he said the Council would of Ireland, but that this have an equal number of welcome must be qualified Ministers from both North and pending the allocation to it of | South. Decisions of the Council adequate powers, particulars would be on the basis of : in respect of law enforcement unanimity, he said, and the Council would have a secretariat The bringing to trial, in the headed by a secretary-general. "In view of the complexities charged with murder, now of the executive functions of the matter where committed Council, all parties have agreed seems to be legally possible, that a review should be set in but is not likely to be prac- hand to report before the second ticable. This, I believe, will stage of this conference as to relation to which the Council of Ireland will have executive Revenue for the Council will task that confronted the initially be provided by way of Irish Government Ministers grants from both the North and To page 5

Pictured after the signing of the Council of reland (Alliance), the Taoiseach, Mr. Cosgrave, the British Premier, Mr. Heath; Mr. Brian Faulkner (Unionist) Mr. Gerry Fitt (SDLP).

'Another Munich'

REV. Martin Smyth. head of the Orange Order. commenting in Belfast last night on the Sunningdale agreement, said: "I want to study the document in depth, but I would not place a great deal of hope on the trustworthiness of the treaty because history has not given us much ground for thinking the Southern Government will keep it. "I will be waiting to see what assistance the R.U.C. gets from south of the Border.

"I think the negotiators will get a welcome home in Northern Ireland similar to that given to Chamberlain when he returned from Munich," he said. (Reaction report: Page 4)

SAVE

and earn £1,776 after 5 years £5,490 ,, 10 years

PER MONTH

£14,408 " 16 years (TAX FREE)

plus ● Lite cover up to £5,840 Guaranteed minimum return or invest a lump sum-£5,000 becomes £10,000 in under six years or take tax-free annual income

Cash results mean more than percentages No fixed period. Minimum lump sum £2,000

Savings & Investments

Finance and Life Assurance Advisers

To: SAVINGS & INVESTMENTS LTD. 35 DAWSON STREET, DUBLIN 2. Tel. 782055/782366. Please send me details of your SAVINGS PLAN and the state of	•
Address
Date of Birth		(el_	