Don't Object, I Don't Object. The score of the "Bepko" Mr. Joseph Griffin and Mr. Lockyer, respectively, were a pair of capable if disreputable-looking villains, who very properly were the chief subject of the music. The orchestra, under the Warwick Balthaize, rendered the music with a precision which most happily conveyed the feeling of meanness intended by the author.

MAURICE D DALY (GEORGES ST) OPERA HOUSE. Mr. Joseph O'Mara's Co., "Il Trovatore" and "Fra Diavolo."

Two performances were given by Mr. Joseph O'Mara's Company at the Opera House on Saturday, and while the evening performance was fairly well patronised, there was a really good audience present at the production of "Il Trovatore." Verdi's great work has proved to be popular and successful. Time after time crowds have heard it repeated, so that practically every line of it must be known to the average playgoer, while many of the lyrics are frequently repeated in the street.

WASHINGTON CINEMA. An excellent programme has been arranged by the management of this new picture theatre for the coming week, and there should be large audiences nightly. The first picture for the next part of the week is a five-part drama entitled "The Comedy Web," taken from Herworth's masterpiece. It should prove a great success, for the story is interesting throughout, the cast includes some of the best-known names in the cinema world, and the production is of high quality.

LITERARY AND SCIENTIFIC SOCIETY. Mr. B. Haughton presided at a meeting of the Society, when Dr. J. M. O'Donovan delivered an illustrated lecture entitled "The Evolution of the Human Mind." Among those present were: Dr. P. G. Leary, Dr. J. Taylor, Messrs. T. H. Mahony, T. O'Garra, R. S. J. Kelly, J. P. Carleton, M. E. Cogan, C. Thompson, R. Wood, M. P. Devitt, S. Spiro, Thomas Goodall, and others.

LATE MR. D. K. LEAHY, B.A., DUBLIN. Catholic education in Ireland has suffered a severe loss quite recently by the lamented death of Mr. Daniel K. Leahy, B.A., who died in Dublin on Saturday, January 24th, 1920. He was the last surviving son of the late Mr. John Leahy, a well-known figure in the history of the Catholic secondary education in Ireland.

IRISH MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS. Mr. A. Griffith has received the following cablegram from San Francisco: "The Irish Municipal Election in San Francisco, California, on Saturday, January 24th, 1920, representing 100,000 citizens of Irish blood, exchange hearty congratulations upon the success through the overwhelming victory of Sinn Féin at the recent elections in Ireland." Mr. Griffith has sent the following message to Mr. Do Valera: "The people of Ireland, at the first opportunity of recording their municipal votes, have hoisted the national flag over Ireland's City and Town Councils. Derry joins hands with Limerick in the unity of Ireland."

THURLES TRAGEDY. CONTINUED FROM PAGE FIVE. The streets, and having broken into three houses with the evident intention of murder, fired volley after volley into the houses of sixteen families, causing wanton destruction of valuable property, and terror and dismay among the people. The police must be for ever a disgrace to the country, and, for more, on the Government which pretends to rule us. In justice and in the name of the people, I feel bound to say that under the present circumstances of the country, they are subjected to provocation, and no one can reasonably blame a policeman to defend his life in an instant danger. But even their most ardent supporters, and warmest sympathisers, cannot defend, and must necessarily condemn, the conduct of these men on Tuesday night. The R.I.C. are a military force, well trained and disciplined, and they are to be respected for the courage and the discipline which they have shown, and consequently should not have made such a sorry exhibition of themselves, and as there is nothing, even in the relations of Constable Williams, to justify the action of Tuesday night, it is a crime, for those men, who have known when firing that they were most likely to deal destruction and death to innocent people, and that it was a blunder, for it will serve to aggravate the feelings of the people and envenom the bitterness which already exists between them and the police. But it will have besides, far-reaching effects, and it may be said that things are at present so bad that it is not possible to make them worse. This incident will not do what at the moment we want. It will make them look worse. It will make the police look more odious than it is before. It will make the present system of Government in Ireland more discreditable to England than it was already in the eyes of all the free people of the world, and it will make the hands of Ireland's friends in the United States and Australia.

RAID ON 'BALTINGLASS BARRACK. Two Policemen Wounded. A report reached Cork last night that a serious and determined attack was made on the police barracks at Baltinglass, Co. Wicklow, on Saturday night. A fusillade was kept up for a considerable time by the attacking party, and, although the police, who were on duty, were not seriously wounded, two policemen were seriously wounded. The telephone and telegraph wires connected with the barracks were cut, and the police were thus deprived of summoning assistance. The attack was a surprise, and was carried out in consequence of the cutting of the wires.

FIGHT WITH ARMED RAIDERS. (Before Judge Bolkin, K.C.) George Blood, who lives near Lisdoonvarna, had a claim for £24 for damage to his property in his house during a raid by armed men on Saturday night. Mrs. Blood, his wife, had a claim for £20 for personal injuries; and his brother, John, had another claim for £20.
