> To-day some petrol was removed from the premises under military escort, the ordinary carters having declined to harness the horses for the purpose. The soldiers performed the work and conveyed the oil to the receiving yard of the G. S. and W. Railway Company, as it was represented that the railwaymen would refuse to load the petrol on the wagons. The work was carried out by the soldiers in this case also. A military escort was placed in the guard's van of the train carrying the oil-tunk to Cork.

A question arose as to the railwaymen working the train owing to the decision of the Joint Strike Committee who are directing action in connection with the motor dismute, but as it was represented to them that the oil was intended for military. ### NEGOTIATIONS WITH MINISTRY OF TRANSPORT.

The Dublin Correspondent of the "Daily He ald" says-Complete silence is maintamed about the negotiations began some days back between the Ministry of Transport and the Motor Drivers' Union in regard to the increasingly serious position caused by passive resistance to the Motor Permit Order. But I have reason to believe that negotiations are still going on. The fact that the Carrigtwohill raiders used a captured motor knocks the ground from under Mr MacPherson's feet. If the Order does not prevent the use of cars by miders and does tie up legitimate industry all over the country, it is singularly hard to justify its retention, which seems in part due to the mere obstinacy on the part of the Castle authorities.
